THE LOVES OF AUTHORS.

Oante, Spenser, Milton. Pope, Byron, and Others - Men of Genius Who Have Been Unfortunate in Love, Our Own Poe

And Irving, (For the interior Journal.]

Love and genlus, though both are said to be the gifts of the gods, rarely go hand in hand. A long list might be made and an entertaining chapter written of poets and prose writers, who have charmed the world by the irrecistable fascination of their ge nine, but who have been unfortunate ln suing for woman's heart, or else prevented by mishap or ill stars from enjoying the bline thereof, after its being won. Daute, the Florentine, and the greatest poet of the Middle Ages, whose sonnets and "Divine Comedy" have been the admiration of all words, spent most of his life in wretched ness. When young and ardent he met the laughter of a nobleman. He an w, ha loved, he wooed. She reciprocated his attach ment. But war came and separated them. The strife of Guelf and Ghibelline drove the young poet into exile, and he never saw his "beautiful Beatrice" more, eave in vie ions and bright-colored fencies. She died during his absence; but her memory is em halmed in the melodious verses of her im mortal lover.

In the "Shepherd's Calendar," the work of Edmund Spenser, afterwards renowned as the author of the "Fairy Queen," appears the name of "Rosalind." She is the heroing of the poem and the meiden, if reports he true, whose beauty caused young Spenser to first tune his lyre. She scorned, however, his "rural music" and toyed with his feelings only for sport; but his songs forever afterwards prove the sincerity of his affection for her, whose loss was to him a slunning blow.

Deserted by his unfaithful bride, John Milton, the illustrious anthor of "Paradise Lost," passed days and nights in wearing vexatione; and might have entertained a lasting hatred to the sex if she had not begged his forgiveness and returned to the ctity of her early vowe. In the cutting earcasm and pointed morality of Alexander Pope, the scoffings of a wounded heart are clearly visible; yet the celebrated au thor of the 'Danciad," the "Rape of tha Lock" and the "Moral E-eays" would intlmate that he never loved a woman. Howbeit he paid ardent court to Lady Mary Wortley Montague, who though she admired the genius of Pope, laughed at the idea of his love.

That passionate ploughmen, Robt, Burns, sung his amorous lays to scores of lasses, and felgued a flame to all, but only to Mary Campbell poured out the full volume of his soul. But Mary died and all his hopes were buried with her. To the mamory of posterity he has cancified her image in his "Highland Miry," "To Mary in Heaven" and other beautiful lyrics. Perhaps the most ugted instance of frustrated love ever recorded was that of Lord Byron for Mary Charworth. Their meeting was romantic She was young and heautiful; and Byron youthful and passionate, fell madly in love' with her In the mid-t of their courtship she was married to another. Here is the key to all of ligran's miserable after-life The wandering "Criefde Harold," the recreant "Don Juan," the spirit-haunted "Mun'red" and the fearless "Cornair" are but the veritable Byron seeking to divert his mind of its load of regret and sorrow, by engaging in wild and thrilling adventures. 'Ils true Byro I found a partner at last, but she was not the 'Mary of his youth," and so sadly it turned out that he had best never married. The theme of his tiret and only tove is celebrated in many baautiful passages of his works, and especially in "The Dream."

Sheller, unlike hie contemporary, Byron, married the woman of his choice, a blooming country girl, and for a time lived hap pily, but segurated from her and became as unhappy and lonely as his ideal "Alastor."

Nor has Alfred Tennyson, the poet laureste, estaped. He, too, If "Locksley's Halt" be any authority, received a concus eion in the region of his heart, for he sightd:

"d), my cousin, absticw hearted, O, my Amy, mine as more."

But who this Amy was remains a mysle

ry yet to be unveiled. Outside of the ranks of poets, Elward Gibbon, the historian, may be mentioned as one of the unfortunates, la his autohi ography, written during his latter years, he tells yery affectingly the story of bla early love for Mile Curchod. She was a French lady, whom he met on the Continent Her accomplishments won him over. but his father objected to the alliance. wife of Necker and mother of the gifted Mdme de Stael, and thibbon remained single to forget his disappointment in the conception of "The Decline and Fall of the Reman Empire "

In the frustrated hopes of Thomas Carlyle for Margaret Gordon, fate decreed that cynic should suffer. Margaret Gordon was a "lady of the blood," and Carlyle gained her affection. But there was too great a disparity in their respective ranks. A letter from her full of tenderness and advice dissolved their ties. But when a quarter of a century had passed and Carlyie was heralded throughout Europe as the greatest author of "The French Revolution," Margaret Gordon, then the wife of an Aberdeen millionaire, alghed for the days when young Carlyle worshiped as her

Of our own countrymen, the story of Elgar Allen Poe and his love for his lovalid consin, Virginia Clemon, is sympathetically and. She died not long after her marrlage with Poe and be, heart-broken at her loss-for he loved her with all the devotion of a husband - wandered about from place to place, mourning in wildly pathetic. etrains the "Lost Lonnre" and "Arrabel Lee," of his lietter days His poems are but the crytalization of his deathless love. for her. Those who have enjoyed the droll yet retined humor of Washington Irving, have laughed over and over again at "Diedrick Knickerbocker" and "Rip Van Wlnkle," little dreaming that underneath this flow of geniality was bld a current of andness and sorrow. In early life, it is said, he wooed a lovely young lady; but ere their vowe were consumated, she lost her reason and apent the rest of her life shut up in a private apartment of har father's house, which stood on the picture-que banks of the Hudeon. Olten Washington Irving passed it, sailing to his home at "Sunny alde." Oh, what must have been his emotion at such time! He bore his fate, how ever, compliacently, but no woman ever shared his lot. Knowing this, one marvels not that Irving epent so much of his time abroad in foreign lands. His "Alh ambra." "Tales of a Traveler" and "Bracebride Hall," "Astorla" give some idea of hie waye; but only in "The Broken Heart" has he tonched the full chord of his life. Longfellow was never unsuccessful in wooing, but his life was full of gloom and sadness, for the wife of his youth died early and the one of his second choice was hurned to death. In the "Footsteps of Angels" and other poems, he alludes most touchingly to the "forms of the departed." But enough hee been said to prove that the most gifted are not always the enjoyers of the dearest sweets ROBERT L. DAVIS of exletence.

With the Senate turning out pension hills at the rate of 66 new ones a day as it did Saturday, it will take President Cleveland a long time to catch up, as he only got in seven vetoes on the same day. But then he is the man to stay with them all night and keep down such frauds as It will require more than a hundred million of dollars to pay the pensions hills rection. next year and at the present rate of increase the time is close at hand when every mother's son-of a gun who enlisted in the late war, whether he fought or not, can lay back in idleness and live on his pension money. It is actually appalling to contemplate the lengths to which the business has been carried and imagine what le yet ln store for this pension-ridden country.

THE late terrible railroad accident on the Baltimore & Onio has just heen doubly discounted on the Central Vermont, near Woodstock. It happened at 2:30 o'clock Saturday morning and was caused by a broken rail, which threw two passenger coaches and two sleeping-cars from the track and into White river, 50 feet below. The care turned upside down in falling and some 89 passengers were either crushed to death or hurned to ashes in their horrible prison, the cars taking fire at once from the upturned stoves and creating a heat so lntense that resoners could not go to their assistance. It is the most horrible accident that has occurred since the terrible catastrophe at Ashtabula, which happened about ten years ago and created such a wideepread excitement. It is alrange that in this age of invention some one has not devised a method of heating and lighting cars that would render at least one part of these terrible accidents Impossible.

Resolved, 1st, That we denounce and condemn the democratic party of Kentucky for their careless and gross mismanagement of the State affairs whereby a large sinking equandered and spent and the people burdened with a heavy debt and an empty treasury; and our charitable institutions have been grossly mismanaged and scandals have flourished in them. The honest laborers of the State have been compelled to compete and work side by side with the penitentiary convicts and their honest labor

21. We demand that the convicts be confined inside the prison walls and not to come in contact and compete with the honest laborers of the country; that the egalization board be abolished; the present obnoxious and burdensome revenue law and inquisitorial assessment laws be repealed; that our free echon! system he fostere! and improved and such laws be passed as foster labor organizations and check the encroachments of capital and corporations upon the rights of the people.

31. Recognizing the distinguished ability and eminent character of the Hon. W. O. Bradley, of Garrard county, and also his devotion and services to the republican party of the State and nation, therefore resolve that the delegates of this convention are instructed to cast the vote of Lincoln connty for him for Governor and to use all honorable means to secure his nomination in the State convention and they are also instructed to cast the vote of Lincoln county for the Hon. The Court of Appeals. The business of the Appellate Courts of Kentucky seems to be the hanting up of technical quibbles. A Court of Appeals in oriminal cases is necessarily a court of protection to the culprits. Cases are not ap pealed when justice is outraged by insuffi cient punishment. The most bloody, brutal murderer may be set free by the lower court, or may be given only a tritling len prisonment as in the Wepler case, and society, which is defrauded by such lax inelice, has no recourse to the Court of Ap. peals. But let full justice he done, or the court err in the way af severity, and the Courl of Appeals always opens an avenue of eacane.

These actions are too often taken on the meresi technicalities, or most ridiculous prejexis. The Kaelin case is an instance in point. Although there is not the shadow of a doubt that the bloody brute mur dered his wife, and that he was perfectly sane when he did so, the wise Court of Appeals saw fit to reverse the just sentence of was emilted from the indictment Was there ever such a ridiculous irelext offer ed by a sensible cour.? What earthly connection can the word "felonlously" have le do with the guilt or innocence of a brutal wife murderer? What difference can it possibly make in the beinousness of the crime if the grand jury forgot to say that the muriler was committed "feloniously?" The murder was assuredly not an accident, and whether it was felonious or not, it was a bloody, brutal butchery, and the miscreant who committed it deserves hanging But our wise Court of Appeals has seen At to overrale the decision of the Criminal Court. Because of a trifling technicality it to higher planes of development and tend to has reversed the contence of the murder-1: it has nut the State to the expense of another trial; it has made it more than likely that the gnilty man will escape his just foom. This is the decision of the Supreme Court of the Stale; its judgment is law. There is no appeal from it. But and refining and you feel your better nature there is a bigher tribunal; there is a court in banc; a court, the unanimous decision of which is a reversal of the Court of Aypeals, a condemnation of their foolish course; this is the court of public opinion, a tribunal that is always honest, always inst - [Louisville Post.

Yellowstone National Park in a district of land situated at the northwest corner of the Territory of Wyoming, which was, in 1872 est apart by Congress as a public park, or pleasure ground, for the benefit and enjoyment of the citizens of the United Stater. It has an area of 3575 squara wiles and measures 65 miles from north to conth and 55 from east to west. In this is a diversity of natural phenomena. each as is not brought together in the same space elsewhere in the known world. It has geysers and monntains, lakes and water falls, hot springs and perpelual snows, and colors not surpassed in the alchemy of neture. It is one of the wonders of the world Little was known of this region antil 1864, when Captain de Lacy with his party pene arated its western edge. Then, in 1870, General Washburn, Surveyor General of Montana, made its wonders more fully about their appearance than they would be known, and later a thorough investigation was made by the geological survey of the Territories.

To facilitate the operation of plastering a device has lately been invented, termed a plasierer's platform, which is set on casiers and may be elevated or lowered to walt or seiling as the convenience of the workman may require. Accompanying this arrang ment is an improved two hand trowel and the platform is capable of extension in a herizontal as well as in a vertical direction Thus, by the combined use of the two, all sumbersome etaging and the old time hod and short single handed trowel are dispensed with. The mortar is placed in an extensive trough, which is suspended on sonvenient to workmen; the apparatus can soom, and the cost of laying on either placter or hard finish is said to be thus much reduced.

WOMAN AND HOME.

THE FRIENDSHIP AND LOVE OF A WOMAN WORTH WINNING.

Clenntiness and Ita Virtues-Rules for Family Peace-A Woman's Good Reso-Intions-Interior Decorations-Children. Kitchen Hituts-Notes and Items.

My brother, it is sald, and I believe it to be in many cases true, that men do not read women readily; do not understand their real characters even though those characters may be seen by other women. Now, let me give you an infallible rule, one which you can apply in every case and never be disappointed in the results. It is simply this: When you come into the presence of a woman whom you are meeting for the first time note the impression she makes on your mind. If she reminds you at once of your sex and her own by look, word or net, let her alone, for her influence will degrade you. She may please your eye by her benuty, your ear by her voice, flatter you by her words and manner, but she will never be a true friend to you. She studies to please and expects you to please in return. She has no thought above present pleasure and no care for anything but self. She will never uplift you beyond your present plane nor incite you to deeds of She must live ont her organization the lower court because the word "felony" and by suffering be made to see the true aim of life before she can be to you in any respect what a woman should be to a man-a guide to draw him up, not down; a friend whom ho can safely trust and honor, and, perchance, even love.

If, on the other hand, you meet a woman whose presence brings no thought of sex Into your mind, who brings out your best thoughts and gives you hers in return, whose manner encourages no ignoble deed or word, who respects herself, and involuntarily calls out your respect for her, make that woman your friend, no mntier what may be her age or social position, no matter if she be poorly dressed and plain featured and one not calculated to make a show in the world of fashion; she has a soul filled with good, and her thoughts are the forerunners of good deeds, and she will prove a source of constant inspiration to you that will draw you make you the man you ought to be. After spending an hour with such a woman you leave her feeling more manly, more erect morally and physically, and though you may not have the thought clearly formed in your mind, yet you are conscious that the time spent in her company was spent wisely. You are aware that her influence is clevating rousing into action. You feel ashamed of your misdeeds and wish yourself better than you are, and resolve to make yourself more worthy of her regard. Evils that you have scarce noticed before you are hardly willing to tolerate, now ilesires awake and you breathe for a time a new, purer atmosphere. When you find a woman who produces these or similar impressions on you, cultivate hor acquaintance; sho will do you good Her influence will be ennobling, not degrad ing. She will never dag a man down, but raise him to a higher level and hring out in strong relief all the grand nobility of manbood that is in him, and the strength and purity of his highest and best gifts. The friendship and love of a woman of this class is worth winning, my brother; and happy is he who can call such a woman his friend, and doubly blessed is he who can win her for his life companion. Association with ber will be on a plane far above selfish passion, and round out the life into harmonious completeness that not only influences the individual but all who come in contact with him. - Cor. Christian Register

Cleanliness is Next to Gotliness. ' I have seen the women of many nations, remarked an old gentleman to a reporter the other day, "both in society null at home, and I confess with pride that I think American women, as a rule, are the neatest the world over. liave you ever lived in a village and noted the fastidious habits of the belles, who are perhaps more particular in a large city, because they know everybody knows them, and because they cannot go down the street without being scrutinized closely by some admirer! I have known village maidens after having married and settled flown in a great city take advantage of the wilderness of hous a and strninge faces and go about in such slatternly attireasthey would never have assumed in their native village, but these cases nro rare.

'You take a girl who is neat at home and she will be neat everywhere else. If she wears a clean calico in the morning she will wenr a spotless merino in the afternoon. If she wears a clean collar in the morning she will replace it with a fresher one in the even-

Interior Decorations.

Horticulturists are positively besieged for landsome seeds of exotic and native plants to be worked in with embroidered flowers, or with divisional bands of screens, or to deck the covers of card boxes, etc. For attach ment a fine drilled hole for the passage of the needle passes through their axes.

Among choice knickknacks for boulair and similar use are small cabinets with masking doors inside of doors-subtleties of craftsmanship with interior arrangements concealed, the whole of accurate and refined execution.

White Underwear Going Dut.

The following notes on dress are furnished me by a lady: While many a Frenchwoman of the well-to-do bourgeois class goes to market herself in order to save a few sous on the urice of her comestibles, she is often regardless of the expense of her white petticoats. The white petticoat is rather a costly article, because it must always be spotlessly clean. A French lady, and above all a Parisienne, would as soon think of wearing one soiled as she would think of being seen with a hole in her stocking or with boots down at heel. In such matters the French are essentially particular, and in this respect they set an example to many wealthy and well dressed daughters of Albion and of America, who, even when in Paris, are not always irreproachably gloved and booted. To return to the white petticoat, it has held its ground in France, while in some other countries it has of late years been almost driven from general use. Yet even in this matter of the white petticoat fashion is forbidding French ladies to be henceforth too conservative. They are told that, at any rate during the coming winter, they are to wear colored skirts, except for full evening dress and for toilettes de ville. In short, underlinear generally is undergoing modifications, and night dresses of colored cambric reflect the taste of many foremost women of fashion. Nay, more, pure white is no longer exclusively used for baby toilets - Beston Transcript

AGRICULTURAL WEEKLIES The Country Gentleman is the Leading Journal of American Agriculture. In amount and practical value of contents, in extent and ability of correspondence, in quality of paper and atyle of publication, it occupies the first rank. It is believed to have no superior in either of the three chief divisions of Farm Crops and Processes, Horticulture & Fruit-Growing. . Live Stock and Dairying.

While it also includes all minor departments of rural interest, such as the Poultry Yard, Entomology, See keeping, tireenhouse and tirajery, Veterinary Replies, Farm Questions and Answers, Fireside Reading, Domestic Economy and a nummary of the news of the week. His market Reports are unusually complete, and much stiention is pall to the prospect of the crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important questions—Witch to buy and when to selt. It is liberally illustrated and is intended to supply in a continually increasing degree and in the test sense of the term, a
